Shadows of Matrimony. Ling John Herm, a young Chinaman of Boston, made love acceptably to Kato Englehardt, while visiting Philadelphia, and they were married. Although she was a young and pretty girl of good character, the Mongol failed to appreciate his prize, and whipped her brutally before a week had elapsed, hesides spitefully cutting up her clothes. They were separated.

There was the Chief Justice, with irongray hair, thick and stiff, and whiskers just the same, a big nose and a big mouth, wrapped in his black silk gown, but looking very like a Chief Justice. But he attends to his business, leaves politics to the dogs, and is respected by his associates. On his right, oldest in commission of any one on the bench, is Justice Miller, round and fat, and sixty-four, a little bald and closely-shaven face. On the bench he is as cross as a hatchet, for he hates circumlocution and shams (and half the bar is made up of them); but off the bench he is as jolly, and kind, and gentle as any man you A thrifty young fariner living near Crittenden, Ky., is now thirty years old, and was first married August 23, 1872. Since that time he has buried two wives and is now living with the thirty we wives Since that time he has burned two wives and is now living with the third, having been a widower twenty-one months. He is now the father of eleven children—eight boys and three girls. He has two eight boys and three girls. He has two pair of twin boys.

The marriage of Timothy Haley, aged seventy-five, to a girl of seventeen was not expected by the people of Brookville, Ky., to prove a happy one; yet they are surprised by the separation that has taken place, as it was brought about by the old man instead of the bride. He is convinced, he says, that she married him solely for his money; and she gives color to his charge by suing him for one-third of his $10,000.

color to his charge by suing him for one-third of his $10,000.

Miss Bourne eloped with her lover at Whitehall, N. Y., but on the condition that, immediately after the marriage ceremony, she should be allowed to go back home, and tell her mother. Her idea was that the maternal objection to the young man could be overcome by argument as soon as she was his wife. But the plan miscarried. The mother had so much the best of the discussion that the bride was convinced, instead of had so much the best of the discussion that the bride was convinced, instead of convincing, and when the bridegroom came for her next day, she informed him that she desired never to get eyes on him again. She even put on boys' clothes, and escaped, while he was watching the house, so thorough was her change of purrose. change of purpose.

IN RESEARCHES upon the petroleums of the Caucasus, M. Schutzenberger has observed that, although conducted with the utmost care, his analysis frequently showed more than 100 per cent. of mat-ter. A like result was obtained with two served; while if the articles so affected are exposed for a short time to sunlight they give a normal analysis. It is suggested, as a possible explanation, that the weight of atoms may vary within certain narrow limits, and that in the case of the hydracarbon it may be modified by the action of sodium or by light. If confirmed, M. Schutzenberger's discovery will have an important hearing upon the fundamental principles of chemical science.

shams (and half the bar is made up of them); but off the bench he is as jolly, and kind, and genthe as any man you ever saw. He has been regarded for ten years as the ablest man on the bench. The three last appointments on the bench may change this, but I doubt it. On the Chief Justice's left is Justice Field, appointed as a Republican, but now a Democrat. He is tall, baldheaded, spectacled, full-bearded, with a Jewish cast of countenance. Smart he is, too, as all the Fields are. He writes strong opinions, and is popular. He is a most entertaining companion and a great traveler and scholar. Drink? Yes, once in a while. Miller and Field, respectively, are the two oldest Judges in commission on the bench. Justice Bradley is the next in point of rank—thin, refined, close-shaven, gray haired, indicially-looking old gentleman, who doesn't seem to have much to say to any one. Justice Harlan, fourth in rouk (excepting, of course, the Chief Justice), is a specimen Kentuckiah—a giant in his way. Big body, big head, big hands, big feet, long legs, long arms, and long-headed, without a doubt. He is at least six feet six inches in hight. He rents a furnished house from a friend of mine, and my friend has to have made especially for the great Kentuckian, a nine-foot bedstead, with mattrosses, blunkets, sheets, etc., to correspond, and also one for the son of the Judge, who especially for the great Kentuckian, a nine-foot bedstead, with mattresses, blankets, sheets, etc., to correspond, and also one for the son of the Judge, who is as tall. Judge Harlan was a strong acquisition to the bench, and is popular on the bench and off. Chew tobacco, did you say? Well, I should think so, and he knows a glass of Bourbon when he tastes it. There is not much known of Justice Woods. He is a grizzly, slouching man, whose personal bearing and appearance are not at all striking. He is a Judge by appointment, but he doesn't look like one. Justice Stanley Matthews is built on a big model, physically and mentally. As an intellectual force he scarcely has a superior on the bench. He is quiet in his interceurse, and does not seem to care to extend his acquaintance. Justice Gray is a tall, white-headed, peppery old hachelor, who snaps up everybody, and had rather quarral than win a cause. When he first came on the bench here he was nearly killed with heavy eating and drinking, but that time is over. As the old Judges are very tenacious of the rights of spniors, he is not likely to be popular. Justice Blatchford, the last appointment, looks like Geeorge W. Childs, and is, therefore, clean, genial, affable, well dressed, and kindly natured—else looks do not count.—Philadelphia Press.

This decision, of course, gives the defense the privilege of asking these questions, and to morrow Miss Rob-case, and the handwriting in Mr.

Hoffman's sermons. Dr. Davies' firm conviction of the innocence of the defendant, and the fact of new evidence to be presented, go far towards creating a more feveriel desire to know the full particulars. There is a rumor floating around town that Zetta Robinson worked several years at a hotel in Paxton, Illinois; that she rode very frequently from a livery stable there: that she never was asked to pay liv ery bills, all of which goes to show that when she entered Hoffman's house her maidenly purity had long asked the other day, "that you keep been sullied, and that she and others to the accusations against Hoffman. at home, so that your children may

Express referato a gentleman well-known in railroad circles in Decatur:

The retirement of John P, Westerfield, Walsah train-master here, is more than an ordinary loss to the community. Mr. Westerfield was building himself a grood confortable home, and every indication pointed to the hope that he was to become a permanent resident of Andrews. When men as high up in railroad circles as John P. Westerfield, and who have served the company as long and faithfully, have no security that they are to remain in the service of the company, men occupying less responsible positions will be slow to invest in property here, lest they may suddenly find themselves thrown out of employment. Looked at in this sense, the blow is a severe one to the city, and its effect is already felt in the abandonment of several contemplated buildings by railroad employes. The Express knows nothing of the motive for the change—nor has it any criticisms to offer—and it but voices public sentiment when it speaks of the cvil effect such changes have upon the growth of our city. in railroad circles in Decatur:

BEFORE THE BATTLE.

The County Convention and the Nominees-A Fight on the Clerkship.

Here and there about the streets of Docatur, this forenoon, could be seen little knots of city and country Bourbons onferring with reference to what might be done in the county convention this afternoon. None of the delegates were nstructed to vote for any particular man; but the talk was that Joe Ray, of Friends Creek, would be nominated for county treasurer, inasmuch as he wanted it so hadly. No one else cared to run against Wood, because, as some admitted, "he is a hard man to heat." For sheriff, L. W. Ehrman appeared to have the inside track. "Ike" told a reporter that he did not care to run, and had asked no one to work in his interest, but if the demos nominate him he would make the race. The feeling among the city Bourbous was that Cassius C. Clark, Esq., formerly from Sullivan, would be a good man to put up Call at Niedermyer's for fine family for county judge; and there was no question but that John Dinucen would be nominated for coroner. THE CLERKSHIP.

The following is the gist of the report of the Supreme Court at Ottawa, yesterday, in relation to the prayer of Madame Davis for a discharge from the custody of Sheriff Foster under a writ of habeas 13. People's Docket. Elizabeth A. Davis 15. reopies locket. Elizabeth A. Davis petition for discharge from the Macon county jail, under habeas corpus; petition denied by a majority of the court; opinion to be filled thereafter. The court said that they came appears to be included. that they saw no grounds to discharge the prisoner, and she was ordered to be returned to prison.

Sheriff Foster has been notified by telegraph that he shall retain custody of his prisoner, the information reaching Decatur last evening. State's Attorney Johns and Sherifl Foster, who are in full harmony in the enforcement of the law for the punishishment of convicted parties, and work together continually in their efforts to wipe out of existence places of evil and in suppressig crime, made a strong fight before the Supreme Court on Tuesday last, and they have come out victorious. The Decatur strikers were out bright | The counsel for Mrs. Davis were I. A. and early this morning working indus- Buckingham and David Hutchison. They did their best to convince the court that the prisoner had no property and should be released. The fines and costs fish to fry at Springfield. Decatur bourassessed against Madame Davis by Judge Smith on conviction for keeping a house of ill-fame, for selling liquor without license, and for keeping a unisance at Idlewild," aggregate about $2,900.

In the sworn answer of Sheriff Poster to the declarations of the prisoner's counsel, which paper was carefully drawn up by State's Attorney Johns, it was stated: to size up his locals to conform to the Thomas are that he is well qualified for First, the judgment against Mrs Davis space allotted. was made in a court of competent juristhere will be no doubt whatever of his diction; second, that the defendant at the time of her arrest had property which were busy all forenoon getting things in she had fraudulently disposed of, calluding doubtless to the $2,000 or $3,000 which she is charged with handing over to Harry Holmesi; third, that there is now a vention was held at the St. Nicholas Ho-bill in chancery pending in the Macon con county circuit court in which she is interested, and, fourth, that the question of her discharge from custody has once been decided against her in the circuit

Through the efforts of the sheriff and state's attorney, assisted by the court and jury, the infamous practices of Madame Davis have been broken up, and her notorious place has been closed and placed under the control of the law, just the same as Weber's old beer garden resort, which was also declared a muisance and wiped out. Since these two evil places have been closed up, deeds of violence, robbery and kindred crimes are seldom heard of in that region. Let the good work go on, Mr. Johns and Mr. Foster. "Hold the fort!" Judge Smith, the Supreme Court and the PEOPLE are with you. The personer is commonly recognized as one of the most notorious violators of the law in her line in this seetion of the state. Her name is known all over the county, and city and country people want her punished, not in the sense of persecution, but to make her smart for the evil she has done and make an ex ample of her. When she pays her fine and costs she will be discharged.

Why Boys Leave the Farm.

Many people in city and country lament long and loud because boys are somewhat inclined to leave the farm where they were raised. They think this disposition to forsake rural for arban life is certain evidence of deprayity. They believe, or affect to believe, that boys forsake the farm and flee to the city in order to escape toil and lead an easy life. They see virtue behind and vice in the future. They think the and folly. They have convinced themselves that people make money and obtain position in a city by fraud, cheating, and sharp practices, but that they better their condition in the country

only by acquiring habits of industry, frugality, and honesty. Now, human nature is about the same in the brickwalled streets of a great city or in the green fields by the winding lanes in the country. Virtue and vice, honesty and dishonesty, industry and idleness are to be found everywhere that man exists. It is all a mistake that a great majority of the people in a large city do not have to work hard for a living. More people work themselves into the hospital or the grave in a large city than anywhere else. A much larger number of men broken down by hard work in middle life can be found in cities than in the country. The people in the middle or lower walks of life in a great city are obliged to subject themselves to a rigid

It is wise and well to encourage the disposition of boys to remain in the country and to live on farms, provided they have the taste for agricultural pursuits and the proper physical and mental requirements for such occupations. The pleasures of country life have been pleasured to the proper form David to

The pleasures of country life have been sung by all the poets from David to Longfellow. Novelists have never fired of describing the line characters they have found in the country. The city painter betakes himself to the tree-covered bills the general tills the general tilds the cincing

Besides, failures among farmers are very rare, and hardly ever occur unless they are the results of speculations. People in the country are measurably free from the horrors of contagious diseases and from great cal-amities resulting from fires, floods, and the general stagnation of business which is often attended by strikes and riots.

No matter whether stocks are rising or falling, whether rents are high or low, whether currency is scarce or plenty, the man who owns the farm he tends will generally raise enough to supply the wants of his family and to meet the demands of the tangatherer. In time of calamity people in cities envy the lot of those in the country. When the "heated term" comes on, the owners of fine houses in the city are glad to forsake them for the pleasure afforded by a modest cottage in the country. Nearly every man
